Recap: Competition Information

Background

On 19 April, we will be hosting the event "Generation Hope: We Have The Power" in partnership with the Natural History Museum, exploring what changes we can make to benefit ourselves and the environment. This will be an exciting day of talks, workshops, and pop ups to explore how we can all play our part in creating a more sustainable future.

As part of this event, we are running three competitions - one for children, one for teens, and one for adults. Here is everything you need to know about our Teens & Young People's Competition:

Competition Theme

Awareness

Age Suitability

12-24 years old

(There is an age crossover between this competition and the competition for adults - we welcome people aged 18-24 to submit for whichever competition they prefer, or both).

Deadline

11 April 2025 (extended)

Description

We have a few questions for our current generation of teenagers and young people:

- What issues are you aware of in your daily life?
- How did you become aware of them?
- How can you make other people aware?

We'd like you to use these questions to create a campaign about an environmental initiative or planetary emergency related issue that is important to you. This could be through things like creating a zine, designing a poster, orchestrating a social media campaign, or through another medium that you can see raising awareness for your chosen environmental issue. The theme is awareness, so this is an opportunity to think about effective ways we can raise the profile of these issues.

To help you get started on an area of focus, some of the issues you could think about could include:

- Climate justice, and its intersection with social justice
- Sustainability, and how people can contribute to a circular economy
- Local environmental issues in Merseyside, or larger scale issues
- Preventing the decline of Bees, as highlighted in our exhibition "Bees: A Story of Survival"

Commitment:

Anyone entering the competition can spend as much or as little time on their project as they like, however as a general guide we would recommend no longer than one day. We would also love people submitting an entry to attend the event on 19 April 2025, and will display a selection of the entries.

Judging

This prize will be judged by our Youth Engagement Forum, a group of 16-25 year olds who have co-produced this event with National Museums Liverpool.

Competition Prize & Exhibition:

We will be selecting a variety of entries to exhibit at our event on 19 April, to create hope for our visitors attending the event and to share the brilliant entries we receive.

The winner will receive a special hamper of prizes and gift cards from local businesses in Liverpool and Merseyside, particularly those with green initiatives.
